

The New Reading Hub

Archbishop Beck Catholic College is proud to announce the arrival of its new Reading Hub. Built over the summer holidays, the hub will support the school's love of reading. It will be used by students who want a quiet space to read for pleasure, small groups who want to carry out independent or group study, along with being used for intervention and one to one work with students who need a little more support with their reading.

The space is already proving popular with staff and students who have already taken the opportunity to use it for reading our chosen book of the month – You Are A Champion by Marcus Rashford.

Now that the shelves are built, and the furniture is in place the only thing left to do is to decorate the walls. We are excited to see what our Year 12 Art students will design, as they have been given the brief of making the space feel both inviting and interesting. We look forward to seeing their designs next half term.
